
Rules for using this forum - Please Read.

Posted by revrandy - 2007/10/03 01:33

I am excited to offer a participatory site where you can ask questions and dialogue about the Bible, the Church and how Good News is a culturally-relevant place to seek and find faith in Jesus Christ.

Feel free to "jump in" as we begin this blog together. Here are just a few "ground rules."

- Be polite and considerate of others on the blog.
 - Be genuine as we all seek to represent Christ.
 - Be patient (I'll respond daily if possible but I might miss a day here or there).
 - Be understanding about the diversity of individuals that are on the site with you ... we may get some interesting opinions.
- Be honest ... none of us has arrived to the point we "own" the truth. We do, however, have a relationship with the owner!

I'll do my best to respond in the way I believe Christ would respond. This means I won't patronize you or tell you what you want to hear. After all ... the Gospel is often up against society, cultural norms and the status quo.

Thanks! Let's have fun together as we journey from where we are to where God is taking us.

=====